The GED Graduate

The Tests of General Educational Development (GED) have been used since 1942 to measure the major outcomes and concepts generally associated with four years of high school education. The GED Testing Service now serves nearly 700,000 candidates annually at more than 3,500 GED Testing Centers.

Testing candidates represent a broad spectrum of the community and range in age from 16 upward.

More than 90% of all testing candidates successfully complete the tests and are awarded an appropriate diploma.

During 2006–2007, over 350 GED graduates were awarded diplomas after successfully completing testing at CPCC's GED Testing Center. Congratulations, graduates!

Greetings from the President

Dear Graduates,

Congratulations! You have completed the goal that you set for yourself. You are graduating from high school. Your family, friends, and I join to applaud your accomplishment. Today, you can be proud of the work you have done in order to reach this goal.

Completion of this educational goal can open doors to many more accomplishments. Let this be the beginning of the adventure of a lifetime of learning. Setting goals, working to achieve them and accomplishing those goals brings success and builds self-respect. We hope you will consider continuing your education in a college program here at Central Piedmont Community College.

In this celebration today, remember to thank all of the family, friends, advisors, and instructors who have contributed to your success. You will now be able to offer support and encouragement to help others reach their goals. You know what it takes to turn a dream into a reality.

To each of you my very best wishes for your future success.
