Since fall 2003, 43 CPCC instructors have used service-learning as a teaching method in their classes.
Major Accomplishments 2005-2006

• The Community College National Center for Community Engagement recognized Central Piedmont Community College as the 2005 recipient of the Service Learning Collaboration and Civic Engagement Award in the category of Collaboration with K-12.

• The Service-Learning Center moved to the new Overcash Academic and Performing Arts Center. The center has a library of service-learning materials for faculty use and brochures from community partners. The center also provides meeting space, an area for students to use a computer and phone to contact agencies, and to complete their placement paperwork.

• CPCC graduate, Terry McMicking, was hired to serve as full-time administrative assistant. Her responsibilities include data management and program support for Service-Learning staff and instructors.

• North Carolina Campus Compact selected the CPCC Service-Learning Center as a placement site for VISTA member Brandon Lewis to serve as Assistant Service-Learning Coordinator. Brandon will return to continue his work at CPCC during the 2006-07 year. Our previous NCCC VISTA was Aimee Brunton, who now serves as Service-Learning Coordinator.

• The Art Department was awarded a $5,000 grant from the Arts and Science Council to paint the Irwin Creek tunnel. Thirteen students, faculty, and staff generated 740 hours of service and painted a beautiful mural in this greenway project.

• Martin Luther King, Jr. Challenge—On January 16th, the MLK holiday, 60 students, faculty and staff worked 456 hours on 8 different service projects. The project teams were involved in a wide variety of service, such as building perches for the Carolina Raptor Center, painting a new building at Matthews Help Center, and purchasing and putting up fence wire at Joshua’s Farm.

Co-Curricular Service 2005-2006
10,040 Hours
1,326 Faculty, Staff, and Student Participants

◊ Charleston—Six students and staff went to Charleston, SC to assist Charleston County Parks and Recreation with environmentally–focused tasks. Over a three day period, 144 hours of service were generated.

◊ Charlotte—Two projects were completed by our students, faculty, and staff. The first project was led by CPCC Horticulture instructor, John Holmes, to benefit Seigle Avenue Partners. Mulch was spread by 20 participants generating 80 hours of service. The second, two-day project, was a team effort with the Davidson Housing Coalition. A low-income home was painted by 12 participants generating 123 hours of service.

◊ West Campus faculty, staff, and students spent one day of spring break cleaning and reorganizing buildings at Jackson Park Ministries. A total of 36 service hours were generated.

◊ Florida—Students from CPCC’s American Welding Society student chapter, along with faculty and staff, spent 5 days on an educational/service-learning trip in Florida. Their service project benefited the U.S. Space Walk of Fame Foundation. The 36 member team completed 396 hours of service.

• Service in Action!—Vista, Brandon Lewis, developed a new program consisting of a series of one-day service projects.

• Twelve Work-Study students were placed at First Ward Elementary School and Walter G. Byers Elementary School.

• Seven NC ACTS! students were awarded scholarships for their service.

• The second annual Faculty Institute on Service-Learning was held August 1-3, 2005. It was attended by 16 faculty participants and 10 faculty and staff facilitators.

• All service-learning students were given a certificate and invited to a year-end Open House.

• A year-end Recognition Ceremony was attended by 45 faculty, staff, students and one community partner agency attended. Tom Pfahler and Kenn Compton received Service-Learning Instructor of the Year awards. Steve Gore received the Extra Mile Award for Service-Learning.

• A Community Partner Breakfast was held to thank agencies for their support and get feedback on the program. Five agencies were represented.

• Service Inventory—A service inventory is being built to document all co-curricular service being done by faculty, staff, and students under the CPCC banner. A documentation form was developed to aid in this process.

• Assessment—A student focus group, faculty survey, and student survey were used to determine measurement of the S-L Learning Outcome.

  Learning Outcome: Students who choose service-learning options will be able to report how course content was reinforced by their experiences in real world practice.

  Focus group question:

  What else might you have learned from your service that is (maybe) unrelated to your course content?

  “We talked about all those things: religion, the behaviors, the language… we learned about in sociology different language barriers from different cultures… I can’t think of one that wasn’t related to the class.”

  Keisha Wanamaker, student

• Service-Learning Connections was published during fall and spring semesters.

• Our first annual report was developed and distributed.

Service-Learning Priorities for 2006-2007

• Project Development: Initiate project-based service activities involving student groups working with key community partners (pilot effort is the Belmont Literacy Project.)

• Faculty Development: Sponsor faculty development workshops that enhance classroom reflection activities, promote learning assessment, and support project development.

• Resource Development: Seek out funding sources to support Service-Learning Center’s initiatives.

• Work-Study Community Service: Expand the Federal Work-Study Community Service program to 14 students who will be placed with three community partners.
